

TwitterBot Report

Jessie Xu, Aya Kakizaki, Ade'ja Mann

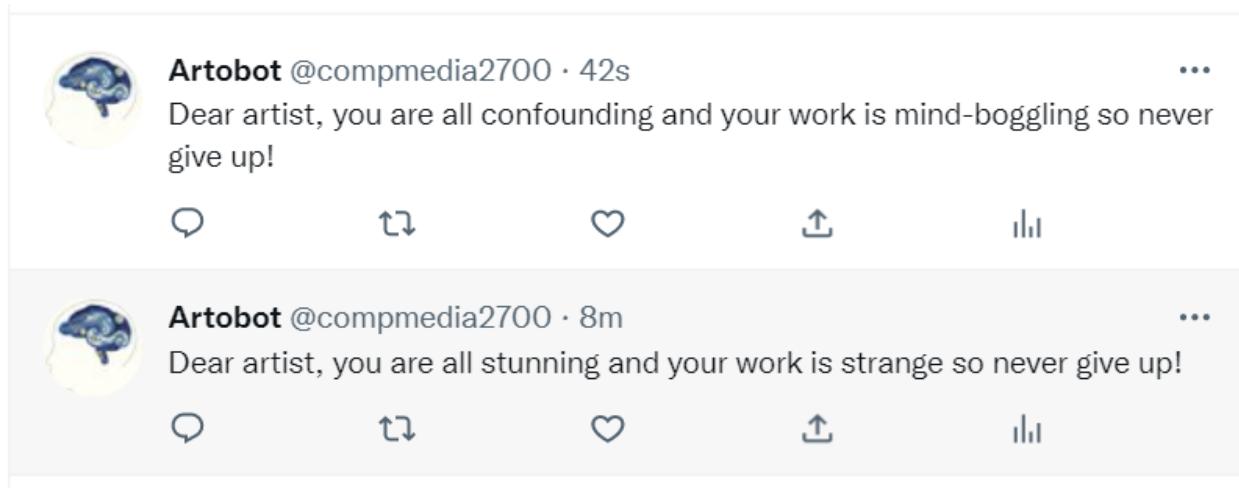

For our Twitterbot, we decided the bot to focus on #artwork. I think it was difficult at first to decide which theme to go with. As Computational Media students, we all shared a common interest in art, so we decided the bot to make artwork the theme. We decided that the bot should be able to reply, like, post, and retweet that was related to #artwork. The bots would like posts with the tag #artwork, and it would also retweet the latest tweet with the #artwork hashtag too. Additionally, we all have basic knowledge of art, so we had a general idea of what the bot could do along with the basic functions. To make it more interesting, we also implemented Wordnik API to make our reply unique, where the bots can be constructive and supportive of artwork. In overall, our bots have successfully received replied, retweeted, and liked posts.

The overall purpose of our bot was:

- Post: bots would post a motivating message to artist.
- Retweet: the bots functioned to retweet the recent post with #artwork.
- Reply: The bot would reply to others when they use the hashtag #artwork. This would implement our Wordnik API that outputs a unique comment and support the authors of artworks.
- Like: Posts are liked when the word artwork is used.
